RPE Poised for Growth

ANNUAL REPORT APRIL 2010 – MARCH 2011

partnerships

Sexual violence prevention & intervention is challenging work for all at Rape Prevention Education, Whakatu Mauri (RPE). Every day we actively work to eliminate rates of sexual violence in communities and develop services for those affected by it.

This year is no different. While the need for sustainable funding remains a priority, the team achieved important milestones in our programmes showing RPE to be a key agency within the sexual violence intervention sector.

RPE's commitment to Te Tiriti o Waitangi is inherent in its executive membership of Te Ohaakii a Hine National Network Ending Sexual Violence Together (TOAH-NNET) and its partnership with Korowai Tumanako (KT).

A talented team delivers our work supported by a dedicated Board of Trustees making RPE an organisation of which I am proud to be the Executive Director.

Dr Kim McGregor

Programmes

BodySafe, RPE's flagship programme for Auckland secondary school students had a record year with workshops delivered to over 4,000 students. An external evaluation conducted by Massey University's SHORE Whariki Research Group concluded that BodySafe was effective, valued by students and of high quality. Recommendations from the evaluation such as increasing the numbers of workshops and progressing to a whole school approach are now being implemented.

The Tiaki Rangatahi portfolio was initiated this year, under guidance from RPE Taumata, Korowai Tumanako (KT). The programme based on tikanga principles and health practices, aims to educate and inform the rangatahi about the benefits of respectful sexual relationships. With news that Ministry of Health will fund a three year programme, it is an exciting time for Maori development.

Sex'n'Respect, RPE's own youth brand has expanded since the launch of the website and resource booklet last year, to reach more young people. 'Sex'n'Respect: Parties, provided senior students with positive strategies to reduce the risk of alcohol-facilitated sexual violence and alcohol-related harm during the School Ball/Party Season. It was supported by the Alcohol and Liquor Advisory Council (ALAC).

Sex'n'Respect Alternative Education

another new programme developed in 2010, funded by the Ministry of Social Development (MSD), gave identified at risk young people in alternative education facilities the chance to learn about respectful sexual relating. The programme was delivered to six centres in 2010 and to 13 in 2011. Continued funding from MSD will cover 25 centres in 2012.

S.C.A.N Safer Communities All Night

was developed by RPE in collaboration with Hospitality Association (HANZ), Alcohol Advisory Council (ALAC), NZ Police, ACC, and Dept. of Labour. RPE trained bar and security staff in the hospitality industry to recognise and intervene in high-risk situations to prevent sexual violence from occurring. More than 20 workshops were delivered in more than 10 cities nationwide in time for the Rugby World Cup.

People

Survivor Advocate Louise Nicholas continues to provide much needed support for survivors contemplating reporting to the police, going to court and throughout the court proceedings. Along with RPE Executive Director Dr Kim McGregor, Louise is also an active advocate in Te Ohaakii a Hine National Network Ending Sexual Violence Together (TOAH-NNEST). Through regular meetings with Government Ministers, Law Commission representatives, ACC, Crown Prosecutors and Courts officials, Louise works with her colleagues to change policy based on the recommendations of the 2009 Task Force For Action on Sexual Violence report. With renewed funding from Ministries of Justice and Social Development, Louise is now able to extend her role and expand her advocacy reach to more survivors and participate in crucial working and advisory groups.

Partnerships

RPE's Sexual Violence Primary Prevention Knowledge Day Hui, was run jointly with Korowai Tumanako and in collaboration with TOAH-NNEST. It provided an innovative focus on capability building for the primary prevention of sexual violence. It was attended by people representing government, crisis and offender services, allied health and social services and academics. The hui created a supportive environment in which to define what primary prevention is and how community determined interventions can work.

The 3rd Annual Northern Regional Symposium was run by RPE, the SAFE Network, Auckland Sexual Abuse HELP, Counselling Services Centre and Tu Wahine. Government Ministers and officials, academics, doctors and clinicians, shared with the sector multiple perspectives on prevention, working with survivors, working with Tangata Whenua, offender treatment approaches as well as judicial approaches – criminal, indigenous and restorative. RPE's most critical partnership development this year has been with Korowai Tumanako (KT) "Cloak of Hope". KT hosted its first noho marae waananga for RPE in March. The noho was a fitting beginning to the new partnership, with a number of new staff welcomed to RPE through the process of whakawhanaungatanga.
